"MECCA OF PATRIOTISM"

GEN. BOYNTON'S FINE SPEECH.

He, a Son of Massachusetts, Gives Full Credit to North Carolina as the Leader in the Revolution, and Pays Just Tribute to Her Glorious History—The Battle Ground Celebration.

Today has witnessed another great celebration on the field of the Battle of Guilford Courthouse. The orator of the day was a gallant soldier of the United States, General Henry V. Boynton, introduced by Colonel Boyd as a "soldier, a scholar and a writer." Trains every halt hour from Greensboro and innumerable private vehicles carried an immense crowd to the Grounds. At 9:40 the private car of the reception committee went out, carrying members of the Cincinnati, General Boynton and a number of other distinguished guests.

They were welcomed at the cottage by the President, Judge Schenck. General Boynton showed a lively interest in the grounds, and had already so far studied the battle as to recognize the "lay of the land." His welcome was very warm and sincere, and he and Judge Schenck sitting together, holding hands as would two old friends when meeting after long separation, made a pretty picture—the one the historian and preserver of Revolutionary history, the other, of the great strife between the States.

At the appointed hour the marshals rode in on horseback and formed the line of procession in front of the cottage. After them came the Gate City Band, followed by the guests of the day in carriages. The great pavillion was packed with people and the seats reserved on the rostrum for guests of the day were quickly filled. Master of ceremonies, "Joe" Morehead, stepped to the rail and said that on this auspicious day it were fitting to open the proceedings by asking upon the day the blessings of our God and the God of our fathers, and that the Right Reverend Joseph Blount Cheshire, Bishop of North Carolina, would lead in prayer.

At the conclusion of a short and appropriate prayer Colonel Jas. E. Boyd introduced the speaker of the day, in a few appropriate and eloquent words. General Boynton prefaced his speech by saying that he came from Massachusetts, a descendant of a participant in the battle of Bunker Hill, to pay tribute to North Carolina, and right gloriously, too, did he pay that tribute, not only admitting, but generously substantiating all of our glorious Revolutionary and ante-Revolutionary history. Below we give his speech in its entirety:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:—Every American should esteem it a high privilege to take part in public exercises wherever this day commemorating our national independence is celebrated. It is an exceptional privilege, as well as high honor, to so participate in this commonwealth of North Carolina, upon whose soil the first battle against unjust taxation was fought in the colonial era, where the first declaration of independence was issued, and especially upon this memorable battle ground—the high-water mark of foreign invasion—from which that tide ebbed swiftly away to British surrender at Yorktown. Behold the mileposts which are set up along that shining way which leads straight on to American Independence: Alamance, Mecklenburg, King's Mountain, Cowpens, Guilford Court House, Yorktown!

But in celebrating the Revolutionary period we should not forget that the fires of patriotism, of defiance to British authority, and of independence burned brightly in North Carolina long before Lexington, or Concord, or Bunker Hill; nor that the legislature of this state was the first to recognize the end of royal authority—that of March 1774.

Today we look back to that independence which this battlefield did so much to secure, and glory in the victory here achieved—for in every sense it was a tactical victory, and the immediate forerunner of the enemy's final defeat. Turning from the past to the present, we find the same flag for which our fathers jointly fought, now floating, by the joint efforts of all their sons, in perpetual sunlight,—for on its folds the sun no longer sets.

To my mind, if there had been nothing more accomplished by the war with Spain than the rallying of all sections again with one accord, under the one flag, to do battle for the nation, this one momentous result would have been worth the cost of the war, even the fearful cost of the soldiers' lives But, without intent on the part of man, and so, we must believe, in the providence of God, something even beyond the final and effective welding of the sections has come to the nation. The flag has been planted on the other side of the earth—planted to stay—and our country finds itself through the marvelous and well-nigh miraculous work of our army and navy in the very front rank of the world powers. Such is the fruitage from the good seed sown on this and the other famous battlefields of the Revolution.

While our civil war was raging it looked at times as if no sun could rise again for either section over that midnight of the republic. But looking back on it calmly, as we can do now, it sometimes seems to me that this was but a course in the school of war through which the nation was taken by an overruling power to teach Americans on each side, by pitting each against Americans, that nothing in the line of soldierly endeavor could surpass American fighting, and thus fit this re-united republic to hold its own among the nations in this day of wierd horizons, of new opportunities, and greater duties. From that school of the Civil War we have been graduated a giant military power. With this added strength we are starting—hand in hand again—to give to distant lands and peoples the blessings won in the battlefields of the Revolution. In this there is no trace of aggression, nor of imperialism—that Boston nightmare of a few prophets of evil—nor anything except an honest effort and determination to meet new duties with unflinching courage.

This park stands for much more than the battle of Guilford Court House. It represents the culmination of mountain and over-mountain effort—largely North Carolina effort—and brilliantly successful effort to check the British invasion of the South. This monument represents and recalls not only all that was glorious in martial deeds and the suffering of the patriot people of the Revolution, but it recalls to everlasting remembrance the infamy of England. It tells to all who now behold, and will tell to all who come after us, the shameful story that the invasion of the Carolinas was deliberately planned as one of murder and rapine, and every cruelty which savage war could inflict. It was work of this kind, wholly outside of any rules of warfare except such as obtain among savages, that was put into the hands of Cornwallis to execute, who, in turn committed the consummation of the predetermined atrocities and butcheries to the willing hands of Tarlton and Ferguson, both of infamous memory. Whatever these tools were guilty of—and of what in the list of blackest crimes were they not guilty—Cornwallis was an accessory before the facts, and an applauding and confirming principal after the crimes.

This monument is for North Carolina the brilliant point on the gilded dome of our Indepence—see far and wide, a gleaming out of the past which will never grow dim. Think of the situation which it commemorates! You are all familiar with it, but standing here on holy ground, to refresh our minds with the chief facts is to lay fresh fuel on the altars of patriotism. South Carolina and Georgia had been overrun: organized resistance had ceased; their patriots were being hunted like wild beasts, and murdered wherever found; North Carolina's regulars had been captured through the imbecility of General Lincoln defending Charleston; the enemy was resting along the southern boundaries of this State awaiting the ripening of the grain crops to advance and subdue it. North Carolina had only her militia and a part of her minute men with which to resist invasion. All along her southern horizon the sky was black as midnight in a tropical storm. Did North Carolina quail? Let King's Mountain answer! Let Cowpens testify! Let this battlefield respond!

In spite of this blackness of darkness the old North State stood defiant. Without regulars, and with a scattered militia, citizens singly and in groups, fired upon and harassed all hostile bands, and held the State steady until it could assemble its scant resources, and rally such outside aid as could be reached. There is no more honorable chapter in Revolutionary history than which covers the time from Cornwallis' appearance on the southern border of North Carolina until the fires of patriotism flamed high on King's Mountain fed with the wreck of Ferguson's camp and army.

There is nothing finer in the romance of war than the gathering of those "over mountain" North Carolinians from what in part is now Tennessee, to hurl back the too confident invader. They came with the scant outfit of harty mountaineers, but with those deadly Deard rifles which they soon made the terror of British regulars. They hailed from regions of which Cornwallis knew nothing, and from settlements beyound the mountains the very names of which he had never heard. They were rallied by messengers which must have recalled to many of those Scotch-Irish men the speeding of the Fiery Cross to rally the clans in the Scottish Highlands. They set out with prayer, invoking "the sword of the Lord and of Gideon." At an appointed rendezvous they met the Campbells from Virginia; and South Carolina and Georgia from their condition of sore distress subsequently contributed an honorable quota. The march was through the snows of the mountains, but in good time they were in the vicinity of Ferguson who had sent threats of hanging their leaders, and devastating their over-mountain regions.

The country is familiar with the history of King's Mountain. Its fame is fadeless on the pages of Revolutionary story. There was no more skilfully planned, more courageously fought, or more decisive battlefield in all the war. And the lone and unpretentious monument which North Carolina has erected on that distant mountain top upon her southern border marks one of the most important epochs of the war.

Then came Cowpens with its crushing defeat of Tarleton, that twin comrade of Ferguson in diabolism. In the glory of that day the Maryland line participated with soldiers from the States which were represented in the extermination of Ferguson's force. And here North Carolina valor shone resplendent. Invasion was crippled. Patriotism in all the south had taken heart again. Cornwallis was in desperate mood. And thus he drew on to his fate on this field on which it is our privilege to assemble today.

You know the history of the battle well. It would be superfluous for me to rehearse its details. For Lord Cornwallis, it was, in a military sense, one of those victories which in every essential element was sore defeat. While he occupied the field, he had neither destroyed, nor disorganized, nor discouraged the patriot army. For him the limits of successful career had been reached. From Guilford Court House he fled to his doom. You all know the result—retreat, stout struggle against fatal conditions, but final surrender. The star of his fortunes passed its zenith at King's Mountain; it was stooping toward the west at Cowpens, it was in the mists of the horizon when the battle ended here, and a little later, and as the direct result of this battle, plunged to darkest setting.

Tarleton, in his carefully written history, describes Guilford as a stubbornly contested field where "victory alternately presided over each army," and, further, as "a victory, which, however splendid and honorable to the general and the troops, was not useful or advantageous to Great Britian."

Fox, in the British Parliament, declared that the victory was with the Americans, for, he argued, that in the face of recognized defeat Cornwallis could have done no more than he did do, namely, leave the field and flee to the coast, as he was forced to do.

There is one false tradition of this field which the people of North Carolina properly combat and deny, and that is the charge that the militia of their State, having been placed in the front line ran without engaging the enemy. It is a story written 28 years after the battle, from memory alone, by a writer since shown to have promulgated many erroneous statements.

To your fellow citizen—Hon. David Schenck, the State of North Carolina, all students of Revolutionary history as well, owe a heavy debt of gratitude for the masterly demonstration of the falsity of this long current fiction. Equally are the State and the country indebted to him for every part of that brilliant and exhaustive history in which he sets forth the splendid part which unconquered and unconquerable North Carolina played throughout the Revolutionary war.

As to Guilford, the evidence which he presents from eye witnesses, and contemporary reports is conclusive that the North Carlina militia were placed in the front line, and ordered by General Greene in person to deliver two rounds and retire then behind the second line. This they did with terrible effect, firing their first volley at 150 yards, and the second at 40 yards, coolly resting their rifles on a fence and taking deadly aim. The testimony of British officers establishes this, even without the equally conclusive and impartial testimony from patriot sources. The hasty retreat behind the second line, after the full execution of their orders, affords no justification for erroneous and cruel contributions to alleged history to which it gave rise. The posting of this line of riflemen without bayonets, the orders given it, the quick retreat behind the line of regulars in the face of a bayonet charge of the enemy, need no defence when examined from a military point of view alone. Time will not permit more than this general reference to chief historical injustice done those who opened this battle of Guilford Court House with such dead y effect. Every North Carolinian, and every student of history who has not already done so, should procure and carefully read the exhaustive and reliable work of Hon. David Schenck, in which, the proofs of heroic conduct appear clear as noonday.

Nothing is more discouraging or exasperating to the student of our military history than the persistence with which erroneous statements, born of the confusion and uncertainty of the field of battle, are reproduced by careless writers, and given continuing life. As this feature of what passes for history has direct bearing upon the injustice done North Carolina soldiers so long ago, and still repeated in such histories as those of Washington Irving and Gen. Carrington, and in leading encyclopedias, a few modern instances may not prove without interest or pertinence here.

In describing the battle of Missionary Ridge, Gen. Grant and Gen. Sherman in their Memoirs, Gen. Badeau in his Military History of Grant which, it is claimed by Badeau, was revised by Grant, and a host of writers of lesser note, insisist that Gen. Sherman carried the north end of Missionary Ridge to the Tunnel. Not only is this not true for the date given in all these histories, but it is not true for any other date, since Gen. Sherman throughout the battle did not succeed in carrying any part of Missionary Ridge. And yet at the time these histories were written, there were hundreds of officers and thousands of soldiers living, who were eyewitnesses of Sherman's attacks and failures. And a small army of them is living yet.

Even the highly praised histories of Prof. J. F. Rhodes, Gen James Schouler, and John Fiske, all professional historians of accepted standing, present instances of error as glaring as these. The application of these sacts ty the perversion of Guilford's history is plain. If celebrated historians in this day, surrounded with creditable witnesses, and with every means of testing their work at command, commit such egregious errors where error is utterly inexcus-

NO FOREIGNER ALIVE

A CARNIVAL OF BLOOD IN PEKIN

CHINESE TELL TERRIBLE TALE.

Chinese Reports Confirm the Reports of the Awful Scenes Being Lnacted in Pekin—Heads of the Legation Guards Borne Aloft Through the Streets—Women Escape Chinese Bullets Only to Die of Starvation—The Indications Are That the Worst Has Happened to The Foreign Residents in Pekin—The Terrible Tale Told by a Messenger Who Succeeded in Getting Through the Lines by Smearing His Face and Clothing with Blood.

By Wire to the Telegram.

Shanghai, July 4.—According to Chinese reports, no foreigners are left alive in Pekin. The foreigners were gathered in the British legation building and were attacked by Chinese forces. Accounts say men, women and children were put to the sword. The reports are indefinite.

KILL THE FOREIGN DEVILS.

Associated Press.

London, July 4, 2:30 a. m.—Couriers who are arriving at the seats of government of the southern viceroys from their agents in Pekin, give vivid, but fragmentary, pictures of what is being enacted in the capital. These couriers seemingly left Pekin a day or two later than the messenger of Sir Robert Hart, the inspector general of customs, who started ou the night of June 24. They report that the heads of some of the captured legation guards were being bourne through the streets at the top of spears, followed by zealots chanting "Tapi Yang Kuei Tse; Tapi, Tapi," (Kill the foreign devils! Kill! Kill!") The city's millions have been roused to patriotic fervor, breaking out into the wildest excesses, while over half the city could be heard fighting around the legations. Sir Robert Hart's runner, who was interviewed by the correspondent of The Express, at Shanghai, supplements the tragic sentence of the dispatches he bore by a narrative of some things he saw. He says the foreigners were making a last stand in the extensive buildings and enclosures of the British legation. They had many dead and wounded. Among them were some women and children. All were short of food, even of the commonest necessaries. The women were starving as they gave a part of their small allowance to the children. The foreigners, nevertheless, were holding out under a terrible fire, upheld by the hourly expectation of relief. They knew they would not be abandoned, and that the armies of their governments were advancing. Sometimes they thought they could hear the artillery in action beyond the wall. They were unable to return the fire of the Chinese, except at moments when an assault seemed imminent. The machine guns and repeating rifles tore the storming parties to pieces. The messenger expressed the belief that it would be impossible for the foreigners to resist much longer, as the Chinese were preparing to batter down the walls of the courtyard, and their ammunition was running low.

Orders were given by Prince Tuan, the messenger says, that since some had been killed, not another foreigner should be left alive. The Chinese soldiers were exhorted to sacrifice their lives without hesitation as by so doing they could help to exterminate the "Yang Kuei Tse." Extreme precautions have been taken to prevent the foreigners from communicating with anyone outside of the city, and a number of runners who have been sent out were killed by the Chinese. This messenger succeeded in getting through by smearing his face and clothes with blood and joining in the outcries against the "devils." He passed the remains of the foreigners of Admiral Seymour's force, who had been killed between Lang Fang and Lo Fu. Their bodies had been cut to pieces and their heads were carried at the ends of bamboos. A large army of Manchu Chinese imperial troops with 20 guns is reported to be advancing in the direction of Tein-Tsin. Reliance is placed in Shanghai on most of the statements made by the messenger, as he is known to be faithful to the foreigners.

able, it will not seem strange that this unjust charge against North Carolina troops, once launched into the current of alleged history should have lived so long without refutation.

North Carolina students of her military history in all wars should be the more persistent in setting forth the proof of the gross error in regard to the action of her soldiers on this field because of the admitted record of their splendid fighting elsewhere. Let me cite you a few figures of the Civil War.

The famous 26th North Carolina of Pettigrew's Brigade of Heth's Division holds the record of suffering the severest regimental loss during the war. It went into the battle of Gettysburg over 800 strong. It lost 588 killed and wounded. On the third day it mustered only 216 for duty, and the next but 80 Besides the killed and wounded there were 120 missing, many of whom were among the fallen. The percentage of killed and wounded, 72; of total casualties, 86. This was ten times the percentage of the total loss of the American army at Santiago, which was less than 9 per cent. including El Caney, Aquadores, and San Juan Hill.

On the same day at Gettysburg, in the same Brigade, Co C. 11th North Carolina, lost 2 officers killed, 34 men wounded out of 38. In the third days' fight Captain Bird of this company with the four men left went into the Longstreet charge, the color bearer was shot, and the Captain brought out the flag.

The Second North Carolina Battalion lost 63 7 per cent. at Gettysburg; the 27th at Antietam 61.2 per cent.; the 18th in the Seven Days' battle 56 5 per cent. and the 7th 56 2 per cent. The casualties of the 4th at Seven Pines, reached 54.4 per cent.; the 3rd at Gettysburg 50 per cent. without counting 51 missing, most of whom were killed or wounded. For Ramseur's North Carolina Brigade at Chancellorsville the loss was 52.2 per cent. In all these cases the North Carolina organizations named lost more than every second man.

Taking the war through, the records show that North Carolina lost in killed over 17 per cent. of entire population of military age.

Let us reason backward from the splendid fighting standard which these figures establish. Could such a military population spring from sires who failed in duty on battlefield of the Revolution?

The Revolutionary epochs in which the citizens of the North State were first have already been named—first to resist unjust taxation by arms; first to announce formal independence of Great Britian; first, when the war was on to turn back British invasion of the South.

Here on this ground citizens of North Carolina, organized by act of its legislature, again have been first—the first to purchase and preserve a battlefield of the Revolution. Speaking generally, the country has done little towards saving the features of its Colonial battle grounds from oblivion. Various steps have been taken in different parts of the land to mark historic points of that seven years' struggle; but nowhere else save here, so I am informed, has a Revolutionary battlefield been bought outright and preserved entire.

Bunker Hill has its monument surrounded by solid blocks of brick and mortar. There is a bronze Minute Man at Concord, and granite tablets on the line of march from Cambridge to Lexington. The State of Pennsylvania has saved the camp ground of Valley Forge. The Daughters of the American Revolution in Connecticut are erecting a historical tablet where Putnam took his famous ride; and their sisters in Fredericksburgh, Va., have resolved to mark all historical points in that vicinity. The government has erected an imposing monument at Yorktown. New Jersey has placed monuments upon each of her fields of note. These things are well, and deserve the support and acclaim of all patriots.

But how these pale before the more comprehensive project here! Here also is a monument to mark the field of Guilford Court House. But how much more than that is here! The very road that existed when the battle was on; the open ground across which the opposing lines faced each other; the position of the fence from which the North Carolina militia delivered those deadly volleys; the lines of the regulars in rear of them; the forest of desperate fighting where victory hung long in the balance; the ravines and ridges which saw the clos of a battle which gave Cornwallis the field, but at snch fearful cost as to prove his complete undoing—all here, he frame work and the detail d setting of one of the decisive engagements of the war, all possessed and restored. The government has reared a noble shaft at Yorktown. And while that is well, it s but half completed work. It will not be finished until on this ground, marking a field which made Yorktown possible, it has raised an equally imposing monument to tell the preliminary story of Guilford court house to the ages.

And while waiting for the government and rallying all the influences which we command to secure action at its hands, I cannot forbear to appeal here and now for more immediate aid to a force and power before which modern civilization justly bows in homage—woman! The land is full of patriotic societies of women. Of these, Colonial Dames, Founders and Patriots, Daughters of the American Revolution, Daughters of the Revolution, are giving increased attention to the preservation of early battle history. If the women of this good State would enthusiastically unite to assist in the full marking of this field, the time would be short before in every particular the work accomplished here would rival in interest and completeness everything yet done to preserve the other fields of that war. This is a work worthy of the ambition and State pride of those women who stand highest in every walk of life. There is no nobler history to hand down unimpaired to coming generations than the record of North Carolina in the days when it bade defiance to British diabolism, incarnate in the persons of that trinity of evil Cornwallis, Tarleton and Ferguson. If in the near future the country should hear that the women of this State had organized to help in the further restoration and preservation of this field, it would feel certain that ere long it would be the most interesting point of pilgrimage among the Revolutionary fields of the land.

Such an occasion as this—such an imposing and influential gathering, assembled to do honor both to our nationality and to the men who fought on this field to lay its foundations broad and deep, should so rekindle reverence for Revolutionary effort and sacrifices as to set on foot general and earnest work for the preservation of all decisive battle fields of the struggle which gave us independence. Especially should this event arouse North Carolina to renewed interest in her fields of ancient but enduring renown.

The government is giving wide and absolutely impartial attention to the restoration and preservation of the most noted battle fields of the civil war. This involves the purchase of lands; the identification and marking of lines of battle; the erection of monuments by the states to regiments and batteries; the placing of guns on iron carriages in every fighting position of the batteries; and historical tablets for every army, corps, division, brigade and battery engaged. This work has been finished at Antietam. It is well advanced at Gettysburg, Chicamauga, Chattanooga and Shiloh. It is in progress at Vicksburg. Bills have been favorable reported in Congress to establish a military park at Atlanta; and a bill for another including Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, the Wilderness at Spottsylvania has just passed the Senate and awaits the action of the House at the coming session.

The government has already appropriated a million dollars for the Chicamauga and Chattanooga national park. Seven battlefields are included within its limits, or reached by its improved roads. In that portion alone which embraces the fighting ground at Chickamauga the government owns ten square miles, and the combined acreage and mileage, including the Georgia and Tennessee divisions, of this park exceeds the aggregate area and mileage of all the other military parks as yet established.

Every State which had troops in these battles sent a commission to assist the National Commission in ascertaining the lines where they fought and deciding upon locations for monuments. More than four hundred brigade lines of battle have been thus identified with the cordial concurrence of all the State Commissions, and the veterans of each side who have visited the field in great numbers. The historical tablets for seven of the brigades set forth the designation, and the names of the commanding officers of the seven North Carolina regiments, together with the commanding officers of the brigades, divisions and corps in which they served. Thus there is on this field, preserved on imperishable tablets, a record of the organization and the movements in the battle of the 29th North Carolina Infantry, Col. Wm. R. Creasman commanding; the 39th, Col. David Coleman; the 58th, Col. John B. Palmer; the 60th, Lieut.-Col. Jes. M. Ray and Capt. Jas. T. Weaver, and the 68th Cavalry, Col. Geo N. Folk.

In the same way on the Chattanooga field the record of the 58th, and the 69th with their commanding officers are again recorded on tablets there. North Carolina had, and I suppose still has, a State Chickamauga Commission. Why should she not have one for Guilford court house, and for the identification of her other Revolutionary fields, and the preservation of their history?

The patriotic citizens, who originated and have carried forward this park project deserve well not only of their State, but of the Nation. They have blazed the way along lines of action which every state should follow whose soil was glorified by a Revolutionary battlefield. When the country comes to know, as it should be made to know, what they have done here, it will be both a revalation and incentive to similiar efforts elsewhere. The fame of their work must yet fill the land, and the honors which are their due abundantly bestowed.

CONCLUDING EXERCISES.

At the conclusion of Gen. Boynton's admirable and patriotic address Maj. Joseph M. Morehead introduced Mr. Wilson G. Lambe, of Edenton, president of the North Carolina Society of the Cincinnati, "the most ancient sois now complete. All the latest and newest machines have been added that money could buy and the plant is now unsurpassed by any in the state. The Public, and especially the ladies, is cordially invited to call at any time and view the plant. We believe they would find it interesting to see the rapidity with which our new machines turn out work. A tablecloth, sheet or counterpane is ironed in thirty seconds or a dozen smaller articles in the same length of time. Collars and cuffs are ironed at one passage through the rollers of our Domestic machine. We also have a machine especially for ironing ladies' shirt waists. To mention in detail all of our machines would require too much space; a personal inspection is necessary to take it in. We run three delivery wagons for the accommodation of our patrons. WEDNESDAY, JULY 3, 1900.

AN ANSWER TO PRITCHARD.

In his speech here Senator Pritchard made a great effort in his argument that Democrats, in seeking to amend the constitution, were violating an oath or contract, made with the United States in the enabling act. Mr. Pritchard forgot that this constitution was made in blood and humiliation, and was a contrancention of the original contract. We note that in his letter, published in yesterday's Charlotte Observer, Mr. M. H H Caldwell, of Concord, in severing his connection with the Populist party, of which he has been an able and conspicuous member, refers to this matter, and completely answers Senator Pritchard's argument before it was delivered: He says:

The more I study the history of the fifteenth amendment and realize the revolutionary methods used to secure its adoption, the more convinced am I that this question of amending the constitution of North Carolina is not a local question, but a Southern question, and this conviction is not lessened by the recent declaration of the Republican party at Philadelphia. I am a Southerner and the only son of a Southerner who stood with Stonewall Jackson in every battle and fell with him on the blood-bought field at Chancellorsville, and in a great crisis, when I behold the Southern States attempting to secure by legal means and under the constitution certain rights originally guaranteed to them by the Federal constitution and taken from them in violation of that constitution by the ballots of negroes voting for their own enfranchisement, like the immortal Lee, I must give voice to this sentiment: "These are my people, and since I must fight for or against them, I will cast my lot with them, because they are my people."

Senator Pritchard's speech here was a bundle of misleading and childish statements, such as that the Democrats in refusing the Howard amendment, became responsible for negro suffrage, and that when emigration agents attempted to carry the negroes away a law was passed against it. Such arguments would do well for a school boy, but for a United States senator they are lamentably ridiculous.

SPLENDID SPEECHES.

Mr. Kitchin Heard by large Crowds at Summerfield and Pomona.

Congressman Kitchin spoke to a good crowd at Summerfield yesterday afternoon. A gentleman from Greensboro, who was present, says Mr. Kitchin was at his best and made a most effective speech. The crowd was composed of about 200 voters, in addition to a number of ladies. People were present from Stokesdale, Oak Ridge and Rockingham county.

Last night, Mr. Kitchin spoke at Pomona. He spoke in the school house, which was filled to overflowing. Those who heard him were highly pleased with his splendid effort. The speech was one which can but do good.

This morning, Mr. Kitchin went to Spray, where he delivered a Fourth of July oration. He was accompanied by Solicitor Brooks, of this city, and Mr. V. S. Bryaut, of Durham, who also delivered addresses.

Democratic Speaking.

From now on until the election the county will be well covered by political speakers of both parties. In addition to the appointments of Democratic speakers already made for this week, Chairman Scales announces the following:

Solicitor A. L. Brooks, at Mt. Pleasant school house, in Greene township, Saturday evening at 7 o'clock.

Mr. J. W. Forbis, at Smith's school house, Madison township, Saturday afternoon.

Messrs. John C. Bunch and T. E. Whitaker, at Lego, Saturday evening at 7 o'clock.

THE CONVENTION ASSEMBLES.

THOMAS IS TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN.

Declaration of Independence Read—Bryan Will be Nominatad Tonight—Stevenson a Strong Vice-Presidential Candidate—Hill the Popular Under Dog—Silver Platform Assured.

Kansas City, Ju'y 4.—The National Democratic Convention was called to order today at twelve o'clock by chairman Jas. K. Jones. Governor Thomas, of Colorado, was selected as temporary chairman. The Declaration of Independence was read and Mayor Reed delivered the welcoming address. It is expected that Bryan will be nominated before midnight, as every effort will be made to accomplish this object. Adlai E. Stevenson was this morning the strongest vice-presidential candidate. The opposition to Towne is booming him and he is a favorite with westerners. The insufferable heat has made the delegates complacent towards any program that will get them out of town at the earliest possible moment.

When Thomas named Bryan a roar went up that could be heard several blocks. Thomas spoke with much vigor and strongly advocated free silver, condemned trusts, expansion and militarism. When he completed his speech Walsh, of Iowa, was elected secretary of the temporary organization. The committees on credentials, permanent organization, order of business and resolutions and platform were appointed.

The vice-president will be nominated tonight, and the platform adopted tomorrow. While Stevenson and Towne are the two strongest candidates for vice president, Hill continues to be the popular under dog. So far as can be learned, Bryan's choice continues to be Towne. Bryan dominates the convention from home by wire, and is in constant communication with the leaders. A silver platform is assured. A train with steam up stands at the depot at Lincoln ready to whirl Bryan to Kansas City if it becomes necessary. The officials of the railroad offer to sidetrack everything and put Bryan in Kansas City in four hours and twenty minutes. The schedule time is nine hours.

Ruth, Mr. Bryan's little daughter, is in Kansas City to witness the nomination of her father.

Stevenson has 248 votes assured.

The convention adjourned until 5 o'clock.

THE MECCA OF PATRIOTISM

ciety of the Revolutionary War and one of the most honorable in the world." Mr. Lambe made a short and patriotic address, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. He referred with pride to the great work accomplished by the Guilford Battle Ground Company in perpetuating and correcting the history of the battle which culminated in Cornwallis' surrender at Yorktown.

In introducing Prof G. H. Crowell, of High Point, who presented Mr. David Clark's portrait of Vance, Major Morehead spoke of the artist as "the most patriotic man and the best orator in North Carolina." Prof. Crowell made an excellent presentation speech, speaking of the glory which clusters around the memory of the greatest man North Carolina has produced. He spoke of Vance in childhood, boyhood, young manhood and in the political world, speaking of his great influence on the people of his State and section.

The potrait was accepted, in behalf of the Battle Ground, in a very neat and appropriate speech by Prof. J. M. Bandy.

Judge Schenck introduced Dr. Kemp P. Battle, of the University of North Carolina, who, he said, had been an early friend and a constant co-woker in behalf of the Battle Ground. Dr. Battle made a short but most interesting address, full of humor aud historical information. He contrasted the conduct of the North Carolina militia on the field of Guilford Court House with the conduct of the New England militia at Bunker Hill, showing that the North Carolina troops were as valorous as any with the same amount of training.

After the band had played "Carolina," and "Yankee Doodle," the procession reformed and marched back to the president's cottage, where dinner was served.

After dinner the afternoon was spent in viewing the grounds and monuments and in other forms of enjoyment.

Everything fresh in the morning:

Snap Beans, Cabbage, Irish Potatoes, Onions, Roasting Ears, Beets, Cucumbers and Squash, Lettuce, Parsley, Watermelons, Peaches, Apples and Blackberries.

Thousands of People Line the River Front to See the Small Boats Come in With a Ghastly Tow—The Valencia Club House Converted Into a Morgue.

New York, July 3—One hundred and two bodies have been recovered from the water of the North river up to 10 o'clock tonight, this being the list of fatalities positively known. The list is growing hourly and tomorrow morning, when the tide is at its lowest, it is believed a great many more bodies will be found. Aside from these a number of people were seen to have perished by friends and fellow-officers on the ship.

All day long today the work of searching the ruins was kept up The officials of the North German Lloyd line were doing everything they could to straighten out matters and bring thing into some sort of tangible shape. Their main efforts were directed to taking care of the survivors and to securing an accurate list of the missing. They looked after the transportation to Germany of the survivors who are in condition to go. They also gave them clothing and fed them.

is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking post, as it were, in regard to prices.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. MARION BUTLER'S PLAN.

Said to Have Designs on Colorado--New Corporations.

Special Correspondence to the Telegram.

Raleigh, July 4—During the six months ended June 30th this State granted 180 licenses to corporations, nearly all of which were industrial. To knitting mills there were five, the Twin City, LaFayette, Seaboard, Tarboro and Greenville. To cotton spinning and weaving mills as follows: Cora, Nokomis, Arlington, Enfield, Harriet, Lowell, Loray, Wennonah, Smithfield, Lily, Capelsie, Dickson, Calmacle, Linn, Greenville. Clayton, Scott-Mebane, Charlotte, Oxford, Vivian and Bonnie. This makes a fine showing. The State capital is over five and a half millions. Authority was given for an increase of the capital stock in the case of those mills.

An old bit of news about Senator Marion Butler was picked up yesterday; this being that he is planning to be a Senator from Colorado after his failure in North Carolina—in other words that he has his eye on the seat now held by Wolcott. He has twice stumped Colorado. North Carolinians will see him depart without the shedding of a tear.

In a speech today the wily Senator was "hoist by his own petard," for an ex-chairman of the Democratic State committee, quoted twenty extracts from the Senator's paper, in 1899, to show that he was then wildly in favor of disfranchising the negroes or of calling on immigration agents to come here and take them out of North Carolina.

The spacious new hospital of the Soldiers' Home here is about two-thirds completed. The inmates of the home say they fully realize the fact that it is rapidly becoming a hospital and that it will soon be entirely one.

The general prosperity here is shown by the fact that there are fewer mortgages and liens registered in this county than in many years past. The register says this makes a very fine showing.

Entries of "oyster lands," at one time so numerous, are now very seldom made. The Secretary of State says only two have been made within the past two months.

There was some inquiry yesterday about how the North Carolina delegates to the National Democratic Convention felt towards Towne for Vice-President candidate. The very prompt reply was that not one cared for him in the least.

Don't go off Half Cocked.

Charlotte Observer.

The people of Charlotte have, within the past week, had two solemn warnings against going off half cocked. In the one case there was some disposition to mob the baseball team because it got beat—it was changed and s rengthened a little, yesterday it covered itself with glory and everybody is now applauding it. In the other case there was a disposition to mob somebody because a trusty had handcuffed a white man to a negro for transportation to the convict camp. Now it comes out that this was done at the white man's insistence, because he did not want to remain another day in jail, and the general behavior of Mr. Crowder, the white man, since this incident—since his fine was paid and he was released from the handcuffs—has been such as to make it clear that if there was to be any complaint about that joint handcuffing it was due, not from this gentleman, but from the negro to whom he was attached.

Arranged for a Joint Canvass.

Messrs. A. M. Scales and Tyre Glenn, chairmen of the Democratic and Republican county executive committees, have arranged for a joint canvass between the candidates of the two parties in this county. The canvass will begin next Wednesday, the 11th, and will cover seventeen appointments, including Greensboro. For several years the Republican candidates have persistently refused to meet their opponents in Greensboro, and it remains to be seen whether they will meet their appointment this year.

A Fine Elocutionist.

Miss Marie Kimbloe gave an entertainment at the old library building last evening that was truly a treat to all that appreciate good impersonations. She is an elocutionist of a great deal of ability and an impersonator of no less merit. She has excellent command of every movement, which is made at exactly the right moment, and has splendid control of her voice which she regulates for the different characters with no effort.—Asheville Gazette.

Miss Kinbloe will be at the Academy of Music, Thursday night, July 5th. Admission 25 cents; children 15 cents.

COUNCIL OF THREE PARTIES.

TRYING TO FIX AN AGREEMENT.

Considerable Discussion on the Question of the Vice Presidency, but No Final Agreement Reached as to the Man—Towne in Considerable Favor—Croker Has a Man, But Deems It Unnecessary to Name Him—Clayton Wants a Man With the Democratic Brand Upon Him.

Kansas City, Mo., July 3.—A conference of the three political parties was held at the Kansas City Club today. From the Democratic party there was Jones, of Arkansas; Tillman, of South Carolina; Croker, of New York; Johnson, of Kansas; from the Populists there were Edmiston, of Nebraska; Weaver, of Iowa; Pettigrew, of South Dakota; Allen of Nebraska, and Heitfeld, of Idaho, and of the Silver Republicans there were Teller, of Colorado; Dubois, of Idaho; Newland, of Nevada. There were other representatives of the different parties present. The object of the meeting was to form the basis of an agreement between the three allied parties as to a vice-presidential candidate.

The conference settled as definitely as it was possible for a few representative men to settle anything in advance, that the platform should contain a positive and specific declaration for free coinage at 16 to 1, but there was no equally positive development in the vice-presidential situation.

The meeting lasted from 11 o'clock to 1:45, and was marked with great earnestness. The entire exchange of views was upon the two questions of the financial plank of the platform and the selection of a man for second place on the ticket, the latter question receiving the greatest share of attention because it offered the most obstacles.

The Silver Republicans and Populists were quite agreed in pressing the candidacy of Mr. Towne for the vice-presidency and also in urging the necessity for a postive declaration of ratio. Some of the Democrats placed themselves in the attitude of men whom it was necessary to win over. All proved good listeners and some of them volvble talkers.

On the question of platform, Mr. Johnson (Dem., Kan.), made the only notable declaration. He said that he was willing to accept a positive declaration for the historic ratio if it were insisted upon but that he thought it would be good politics to leave it out. He thought with this omission more of the Germans would vote the ticket Others, including Mr. Croker, said that they were also willing that the declaration should be made specific. Mr. Croker expressed the opinion that the New York Democrats would vote for Bryan regardless of the platform declaration. Asked if he considered that there was no certainty; that the probabilities were in the opposite direction, but that it was impossible to say at this date what effect the injection of the new issues of the past few years would have upon the result.

There was really no dissent from the opinion that the 16 to 1 declaration should be made. The Democratic representatives generally expressed the opinion that a month ago the declaration was not necessary, but they assented to the demand on the ground that popular clamor now makes it necessary. All agreed after the conference in saying that the specific declaration will be made. There was a very spirited talk over the vice-presidency in which all participated more or less. Mr. Clayton, of Alabama, held out strenuously for a Democrat, "a man who had the Democratic brand upon him." He said that Mr. Bryan himself represented sufficiently the Populistic or Northwestern idea, and he thought no concession should be made in the vice-presidential nomination. He added that he meant no reflection upon Mr. Bryan, but only intended to say that the ticket did not require to be strengthened in that direction.

Senator Pettigrew and others of the non-Democratic conferees replied tartly to this speech. "If that speech were made in Dakota," said Mr. Pettigrew, referring to Mr. Clayton's remarks, "it would mean a loss of 5,000 votes to the ticket."

He proceeded to say that if the Populists had not unselfishly united with the Democrats in 1896 the latter would have been overwhelmed and he added that if their aid was not secured in 1900 there would be still greater disaster. Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, also made a speech in Mr. Towne's behalf, saying that he would add strength to the tickrt where votes were needed and that it was time to have done with the nonsense that a man had to be branded before he accepted. He said the Silver Republicans had left the feast of their own party when the table was spread, and added that he believed the Democrats owed then every consideration.

Mr. Croker said he had no candidate for the vice-presidency—that he did not consider that the concession of this position to New York would insure the State. "I have in mind a good man for the place," he said, "but I don't see that it is necessary to name him. Almost any man will do for vice-president."

He thought it might be better if the West would yield on this point but if it did not do so he would still be satisfied.

Senator Jones contented himself with stating the objections he had heard urged to going outside the party for a nominee, but did not express any opposition to Mr. Towne. Mr. Sewall, of Maine, Mr. Bryan's former running mate, expressed himself as favorable to Mr. Town's nomination.

It was generally agreed that the trend of opinion among Democrats as developed in conference was antagonistic to Mr. Towne, but no sentiment was developed in favor of any individual Democrat for the place.

Another conference was agreed upon for Thursday morning after the first session of the convention. All three parties are expected to appoint committees for this meeting, thus making it official.

NINE RICHMONDS IN THE FIELD.

That Many Tickets in the Field for the Presidency.

New York Sun.

The Prohibition party having selected its candidates for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency, and the Democratic nominee for the first place on the ticket being virtually chosen, the complete list can well be given. More candidates will be presented to voters at this year's election than ever before.

1. On January 27th the Socialist Labor party at Rochester nominated Job Harriman, of California, for President and Mack S. Hayes, of Ohio, for Vice-President.

2. On March 6th the Social Democrats put up at Indianapolis Eugene V. Debs, of Indiana, for President, and Job Harriman for Vice-President. It is said that these parties have since united.

3. On May 23d, at New York, the De Leon Socialists nominated Joseph F. Maloney, of Massachusetts for President and Valentine Remmill, of Pennsylvania, for Vice-Presideni.

4. On May 1, at Rock Island, Ill., the United Christian party nominated the Rev. S. C. Swallow, of Pennsylvania, for President and John G. Wooley, of Illinois for Vice-President.

5. On June 28, at Chicago, the Prohibition party nominated John G. Woolley, of Illinois, for President and Henry B. Metcalfe, of Rhode Island, for Vice-President.

It is possible that the last two parties named may unite on the same ticket.

6. On May 9 the middle-of-the-road Populists met in convention at Cincinnati and proceeded to nominate Wharton Barker, of Pennsylvania, for President and Ignatius Donnelly, of Minneosota, for Vice-President, thereby ratifying the action of an earlier convention held in Cincinnati on Sept. 5, 1898.

7. The same day the fusion Populists convention met at Sioux Falls. It nominated William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, for President and Charles A. Towne, of Minneosota, for Vice-President.

8. On June 19, at Philadelphia, the Republican party met in convention and nominated unanimously William McKinley, of Ohio, for President and Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, for Vice-President.

The Kansas City ticket will make nine.

Now in Europe.

At Harvard a story is going the rounds concerning a last year's graduate; a dutiful son and an illustrious student, yet withal a somewhat literal youth. At the beginning of his concluding year his father, who was just setting out for Europe, said to him: "Now, Harry, get your degree, and I'll send for you to come over and travel all summer." Harry was delighted. "Father," said he, "I will." He studied faithfully all the college year and in June went through with flying colors. Then he cabled his father: "Yes." But the father had forgotten his impulsive offer. He mused over the message, wondered, and then cabled back, "Yes, what?" The son was in turn perplexed but being a well-trained lad he did not remain long in the dark, and fired by duteous zeal, cabled back: "Yes, sir." Letters of explanation followed, and he is now making the "grand tour."

Remember the Place: NEXT DOOR TO EXPRESS OFFICE.

She Used the Telephone.

Often has the telephone been used as a device of Cupid, but Mrs. Nellie Clifford Becker has made it an instrument for divorce, and without premeditation. She is a telephone operator. Her husband, William L. Becker, now an express agent in New York City, knew that, but he supposed that she was employed on the regular city lines. As a matter of fact she was in charge of the long-distance circuit.

One day there was a call on the long-distance telephone for a woman in Syracuse. Mrs. Becker asked for his name. The unsuspecting Becker gave it, and Mrs. Becker was startled to learn that she was talking to her own husband. She sent for the woman with whom Becker wanted to speak, and then listened to every word that was said, and their conversation furnished her with evidence for her divorce. She didn't permit her husband to remain ignorant of it, either, for she promptly told him she had heard every word that had been said.

Becker tried to explain, but there wasn't much room for explanations, and Mrs. Becker told him so. The couple were married 12 years ago, and the husband has been frequently charged with straying from the path of rectitude. Mrs. Becker has brought suit for absolute divorce through Lawyer Wm. C. Lapham in the Supreme Court, and Justice Frank H. Hiscock has appointed a referee to take evidence.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

When the Iron's Hot

On ironing day a woman realizes one of the many comforts that come with the use of a Wickless Oil Stove. A hot iron on this wonderful stove is a clean iron. There isn't a particle of dirt to mar the whiteness of the clothes, because there is no smoke or soot generated from its flame. This cannot be said of any other stove in existence.

Wickless BLUE FLAME Oil Stove

is solving the summer housekeeping question more effectively. and more economically than any other stove — gas or coal. It can bake, boil, broil, roast or toast — and it can do all these things at a fraction of the cost of the stoves, because it burns ordinary kerosene. Look into the merits of the Wickless Oil Stove. THE CELEBRATION.

The Most Important Event in Greensboro Today.

Officer Cates last night arrested Joe Patterson, a negro wanted in Winston for larceny. An officer came for him this morning.

Don't forget that Hon. Dan Hugh McLean will speak at the court house Friday night.

The Greensboro letter carriers returned this evening from their annual meeting held this year in Winston. Mr. W. B. Stewart was elected secretary and treasurer. The association meets next year in Asheville.

The ladies will please bear in mind that Miss Heck will talk to the ladies on Foreign Missions at West Washington Street church tomorrow morning at 10:30. At 4:30 p. m. she will talk to the children.

The executive committee of the Central Carolina Fair Association met last night for the purpose of awarding the contract for building the race track, but on account of some misunderstanding, action was postponed until next Monday night. New bids will be opened.

MEETING OF THE CINCINNATI.

The Most Ancient of All Revolutionary Societies.

The society of the Cincinnati, the North Carolina chapter of which met at the Battle Ground today, is the most ancient and one of the most interesting of American societies. It was organized at the close of the Revolution and George Washington, the "Cincinnatus of the West," was the first president, holding the position to the end of his life. It was composed of officers of the Revolution, and only their descendants can belong to it, and no society can exist outside of one of the original thirteen states or in France. If persons living in other states wish to join they must come to one of the original States. Thus, at the last meeting of the society, there were five new members joining, one from Brussels, one from New York, one from Japan, one from Klondike, and one from Kansas City.

The officers of the Society are: President—Wilson Gray Lamb, Williamston, N. C., representing Lieutenant Abner Lamb; Treasurer—John Collins Daves, Baltimore, Md., representing Capt. John Daves; Assistant Secretary—Marshal DeLancy Haywood, Raleigh, N. C., representing Col. Benjamin Hawkins, aide de camp to General Washington; Chaplain—Rt Rev. J. B. Cheshire, Bishop of North Carolina.

Members present at the meeting today were: J. I Middleton, Baltimore, representing Capt. John Ashe, Jr.; W. D. Carstarphen, Plymouth, N. C., representing Joseph Carstarphen; Dr. Archibald Dixon, representing Lieut. Col. "Hal" Dixon; Dr. George A. Mebane, Greeensboro, representing Lieut.-Col. Robt. Mebane; Col. Benneban Cameron, representing Capt. Clement Read Nash, killed at Yorktown.

New members were elected on the Battle Ground as follows: A. R. Ballard, of Mississippi, representing Brevet Major Kedar Ballard, an original member; W. D. Grant, of Atlanta, representing ensign Thos. Grant, of the North Carolina Continental Line; A. P. Rhodes, San Francisco, representing Capt. and Brevet Major Joseph I. Rhodes, an original member; W. B. Slade, Columbus, Ga., representing Lieut. Wm. Slade, of the North Carolina Continental Line.

The committee appointed to memorialize Congress for the purpose of securing an appropriation for the erection of a monument to Generals Nash and Davidson, reported that a bill had passed the Senate and was pending in the House, and the committee hoped for a favorable consideration in December. The committee was continued.

The flag of the society which was raised on the Battle Ground was presented by John B. Lord of New York. It is like the United States flag except that the stripe is blue instead of red. This signifies the alliance between France and the Thirteen Colonies.

For burns, injuries, piles and skin diseases use DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It is the original. Counterfeits may be offered. Use only DeWitt's. Howard Gardner. july.
